BANGLADESH - POLITICAL

Most of Bangladesh lies in the deltaic region of the Ganges and Brahmaputra rivers. The soil brought by the floods in the rivers during the rainy season spreads on both the banks of the river. Due to which the rivers here change their character again and again. The coastal area of the country is marshy. There are many islands near the coast. The Delta region of Bangladesh is called 'Sundarban'. Chittagong hills are in the south-eastern part of the country. Cox's Bazar, south of Chittagong has a sandy beach of about 120 km. long. It is considered to be the longest natural beach in the world.
